TAVISTOCK HIGH BULKING TEXT—a beautiful sheet of Antique wove. Gives the thickest book for the lightest weight of any paper made in America—but quite inexpeusive.

BENNINGTON BIBLE—a very thin, very opaque, medium priced bible paper for Bibles, hymn books, thin paper editions of the classics, dictionaries, encyclopedias, etc.

One of the largest Bible publishers in America uses this paper exclusively.

PUBLISHERS OPAQUE—a very light weight but exceedingly opaque paper suitable for book lists, trade lists, catalogues, etc. A goodly portion of this book is printed on Publishers Opaque.

COATED JACKET STOCK—a firm strong cover coated one side, beautiful paper suitable for color work—quite inexpensive.

Besides these a complete line of book, writing, bond and catalogue paper.

Carload lots and large contracts a specialty.

AMERICAN TRAVEL & HOTEL DIRECTORY CO.

NEW YORK CITY — CHICAGO

Publication Plant
Baltimore, Md.

Under direction of
Harold W. Phillips

This reference book is revised annually and published early each year. It consists of some 2,000 pages, beautifully illustrated with thousands of photo engravings, printed on fine thin paper and strongly bound. It is the only guide for the vacation or pleasure seekers, in that it advises when, where and how to go—if on fishing or hunting bent, where the "grounds" and what the regulations.

It lists all hotels, from Behring Sea to Cape Horn, giving their capacity, service, tariff rates, etc., telling of their standing in their community. The more prominent hotels are specially reported, with the names of their managers, lessees or owners, who operate them and many are illustrated and described in detail.

The Mother ($10.00) Book also contains a catalogue or classified list of supply houses desirous of outfitting, equipping or supplying hotels, restaurants, clubs and the commissary departments of railroads and steamship lines.

ANNOUNCEMENT of Price Reductions on CORTINA LANGUAGE TEXT BOOKS
effective August 1st, 1922

Since slight reductions in manufacturing and operating costs are now evident, we wish to pass this saving on to the public and therefore announce a reduction of prices on our general list of publications as indicated below, to become effective on August 1st, 1922.

The cuts we are making are much beyond any consistency with reduced costs, but we are confident that the increased sales that result will offset any appreciable difference.

TEN CENT POCKET SERIES

257 BOOKS AT ONLY 10c. A COPY

Classics of Fiction, Drama, History, Biography, Philosophy, Science, Poetry and Humor Now Produced in Pocket Size—Improve Your Mind by Reading in Odd Moments—Easy to Carry. Size of Books 3 1-2 x 5; Books Printed Uniformly; Bound Neatly in Heavy Card Cover Paper.

The amazing thing about our new process in printing is the fact that it makes possible the production of 257 masterpieces of literature—not extracts, but complete—at the surprisingly low price of 10c each.

By using compact, yet readable type, and good thin paper, it has been possible to print the complete and original text in every case in a thin volume which easily slips into the pocket. Many readers have become so enthused that they make a practice of slipping four or five of these books into a pocket before starting the day's work. They do not bulge the pocket and are not noticeable, yet are always available.

Over 13,000,000 of these unique books have been sold during the past two years, indicating the popularity of the idea. The library was started with the thought of putting the best literature within reach of the masses.

"FEEDS and FEEDING"

New Eighteenth (Illustrated) Edition

By W. A. HENRY and F. B. MORRISON

For twenty-four years "Feeds and Feeding" has been the recognized authority on live stock feeding questions. It has gone through seventeen large editions and the eighteenth is just coming off the press. Illustrations will be included for the first time wth this new edition, and over sixty more pages of new text matter will be added. The book will contain over eight hundred pages. Al that science has recently learned about vitamines, mineral needs of animals, the true value of commercial stock foods and tonics, and the very late discovery of a difference in feeding value between white and yellow corn under certain conditions are all presented in this new revised edition of "Feeds and Feeding." A special chapter is likewise devoted to economy in stock feeding.

"Feeds and Feeding" has been quoted as authority in the publications of practically every Experiment Station in the United States, which is true of no other book on agriculture. The time of a person working constantly for three years was required to revise the Appendix Tables showing the composition and nutrients in American feeding stuffs. These tables are copyrighted and appear in no other book on stock feeding.

Though quoted by the college professor, "Feeds and Feeding" is so simply written that any farm boy can understand it. It is used as a text or reference book in every agricultural college in the country. Thousands of copies have been purchased by practical farmers and stockmen.

"Feeds and Feeding" may be secured postpaid at $4.50 per copy illustrated, or $3.85 unillustrated.

"FEEDS and FEEDING, ABRIDGED"

By the same authors

REVISED EDITION NOW READY

This book is a shorter, simplified edition of "Feeds and Feeding." It is about half the size of the larger book and is designed chiefly for use as a textbook in high schools giving courses in stock feeding. It is also used as a reference book by farmers who want to get all the essential principles of live-stock feeding and care in the briefest, simplest form possible.

"Feeds and Feeding, Abridged" is copiously illustrated. The two last chapters give a thorough discussion of the feeding and care of Poultry, a subject not treated in the larger book. Each chapter closes with a number of well-chosen questions, to aid in review of the subject matter. The book is heartily endorsed by high school instructors in agriculture all over the country.

The price postpaid is $2.75 per copy.

"FEEDS and FEEDING MANUAL"

By E. S. SAVAGE, of Cornell University

and

F. B. MORRISON, of the University of Wisconsin

This small volume is a laboratory note-book, containing practical exercises and problems, and is intended for use in classes where either the large "Feeds and Feeding" or "Feeds and Feeding, Abridged" is used as the text book. It is not a text in itself but through its use in connection with one of the other books the teacher is able to give a complete and well-rounded laboratory course in live stock feeding. A wealth of problems is presented, the object being to cover local conditions in practically all sections of the country. The retail price of this book, which contains 165 pages, is $1.25.

Salesmanship and Business Efficiency

By J. S. KNOX

This book has one closing argument we consider so good we will give $100.00 to any man anywhere in the world if he will give us a better one.

One hundred and fifty thousand copies sold in the United States and nineteen foreign countries. Has been used as text in four hundred schools in the United States, Canada and Japan.

One Sales Manager says: "Salesmanship and Business Efficiency has been worth $1,000.00 to me in cold cash."

Five great national sales organizations have used four thousand copies apiece in six years to train their salesmen. Many organizations have used from five hundred to a thousand copies to train their men. The reason is in the book.

Order a copy today. If you do not find it the most practical, inspirational and valuable work on Salesmanship you ever read, your money will be refunded upon request.

Red Cloth binding. 407 pages. Prepaid, $2.50.

The Science of Judging Men

By DR. EDWIN MORRELL

This book is a boiled-down course in Character Analysis. It classifies men into three types; tells what the different shapes and sizes of noses, faces, heads and bodies mean. It gives psycho-physical analyses of a number of national and world leaders such as Rockefeller, Gen. Goethals, Hugh Chalmers and Lloyd George and shows the salesman how to approach, handle and successfully deal with such men.

The book contains thirty-five cuts and photographs. It is fascinating from beginning to end. It contains analyses and information that are a revelation to the average man, not only about other people, but about himself.

"Men in business are necessarily required to judge men and the information in this volume will be very helpful toward judging rightly," says Chas. W. Mears, famous advertising man and ex-President of the Cleveland Advertising Club.

Beautiful maroon cloth cover. 145 pages. $2.00 prepaid.

The Science and Art of Selling

This book contains many unusual features not found in any other work on Salesmanship. It has twenty-one charts that clearly visualize the fundamental factors of business, the human mind and how to deal with it, a sale and how it is made.

The book contains eight retail and specialty selling talks—the best that could be found in the entire country. One of them won a prize of $250.00. This feature alone is worth infinitely more than the price of the book.

A most valuable feature is an analysis of efficient and inefficient selling methods. In this department the individual is able to determine the difference between good and bad selling methods in any business.

The book is divided into five parts, viz.,

1. Fundamental Factors of Business
2. Basic Principles of Salesmanship
3. Retail Salesmanship
4. Efficient and Inefficient Selling Methods
5. Specialty Salesmanship

Albert Sidney Gregg, the magazine writer, says: "It is not over-stating it to say that the author has condensed into one volume the essence of a dozen books."

To see this book is to want it.

385 pages. Price $2.50.

With magnificent artistry the author of "Desert Love" shows the price the half-caste in the land of Islam pays for his hour of love.

John H. Williams' illustrated books about the West.

YOSEMITE AND ITS HIGH SIERRA

New Edition, revised and greatly enlarged. Imperial 8vo (10 x 7 in), 194 pp., with colored frontispiece and 260 halftones, now first presenting the Yosemite National Park, as a whole.

"We would if it were possible to put in words our personal appreciation of this wonderfully beautiful book."—Journal of Education, Boston.

"The most adequate volume on Yosemite yet published."—St. Louis Republic.

"Of great value to teachers."—Educational Foundations, New York.

"This superb volume is far more than a mere reprint. * * * 'Yosemite and its High Sierra' is already recognized as the standard illustrated book on Yosemite, and its wide sale is doing much to make the Park known to Americans and foreigners alike."—San Francisco Journal.

"Williams tells clearly and briefly of the ancient glaciers and their work in sculpturing great scenery. Much of this story he wisely leaves to his admirable illustations, explarined in accurate 'underlines.' The book probably contains the finest collection of mountain views ever made."—Motor Land.

"No one has done more than John H. Williams of San Francisco to interest Americans in the glorious scenery of their own country. His superbly illustrated books on the snowy extinct volcanoes of the Northwest are classics; and he has brought out the best edited edition of Winthrop's Oregon letters. The latest edition of his 'Yosemite and its High Sierra' does the same service to California's chief playground. Its importance lies in the fact that while describing Yosemite Valley fully, still more attention is paid to the highlands."—Henry T. Finck in N. Y. Evening Post.

"So full and varied are the information and description and so many and excellent the pictures that those who must do their traveling by means of books will find it a delightful companion."—N. Y. Times.

LIBRARY EDITION, in stout art crash, $3.00 net. DE LUXE EDITION, ooze leather, gilt top, boxed, $5.00 net. NEWS-STAND EDITION, heavy ornamental paper covers, $2.00 net. Express, 16 cents extra.

"By issuing these two handsomely illustrated volumes on the mountains of our Northwest, Mr. Williams has rendered a service of great value to all nature-loving Americans."—N. Y. Evening Post.

"In crisp and polished English he tells the story of 'The Mountain' from the days when the Indians worshipped it. . . . Really does justice to the stately peak."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"A noteworthy edition of a charming book, in which Winthrop broke what was then virgin soil. The text is of historical importance; the illustrations are works of art.'—The Sun, New York.

The Canoe and the Saddle

By THEODORE WINTHROP

To which are now first added his WESTERN LETTERS AND JOURNALS. Edited with an Introduction and Notes by John H. Williams. Royal 8vo, with 16 plates in color, 48 halftones, and 60 text etchings. Bound in half parchment (leather); gilt top; bozed. Price, $5.00 net. By express, 30 cents extra.

"'The Canoe and the Saddle,' Winthrop's treasure-house of information concerning Indian life and the ways of the wilderness frontier, was frequently republished during the thirty years following its first appearance in 1862; but since out of print, it stood in danger of being forgotten by all except students of the history of the West. Mr. Williams, himself an authority on that history, and a valuable contributor to its literature, deserves thanks for this carefully edited, well printed, and capitally illustrated new issue of the work. It is not a mere reprint, but a definitive edition, expertly annotated."—N. Y. Trbune.

This study is based on a thousand case records of a Bureau engaged in finding employment for handicapped women. It shows the forms of handicaps from which the women suffer, the positions secured and the training needed. Brief summaries of five other studies made by students in the School of Social Work are printed in the Appendix. 1921. 32 pages. Price 25c postpaid.

One Thousand Industrial Accidents Suffered by Massachusetts Children

A thousand reports by factory inspectors of their investigations of accidents reported to the Massachusetts Industrial Accident Board, furnish data for this study. Pupils in the School of Social Work copied and tabulated significant information, and Miss Eaves prepared the final report. 1921. 11 pages. Price 10c, postpaid.

YIDDISH—RUSSIAN

There are more than a million Jews in America reading Yiddish books and more than two hundred libraries carry Yiddish books on their shelves. Librarians know how eagerly these books are handled and how most of these readers become in a short while constant readers of English books. The enlightened librarian considers, therefore, this foreign branch as a good class in Americanization and encourages the keeping of his collection of Yiddish books up-to-date and complete.

Our catalogue of Yiddish books is issued yearly and gives the best list of good Yiddish books available.

The same applies to our Russian department and our catalogue of the biggest collection of Russian Books in this country is sent on request.

On all above we give the most liberal discounts to the trade.

The Tale of the Spinning Wheel

By
ELIZABETH C. BARNEY BUEL

Vice President General, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Illustrated by
EMILY NOYES VANDERPOEL

Author of "Color Problems" and "Chronicles of a Pioneer School."

Press Notices

"A dainty and attractive little sketch and will be found a choice gift for the holidays."—Hartford Courant.

"'The Tale of the Spinning Wheel' is a prettily bound book containing a graciously worded paper on the art of linen and woolen manufacture as practised in New England.* * * With due reference to the antiquity of the art, Mrs. Buel weaves some pleasing details of the nearer colonial period with quotations of interest from letters and diaries."—Springfield Republican.

"The author's main idea is that the simple homeliness of the time of the spinning wheel, with all the dignity of labor which its use implied, ought not to be allowed to escape from our modern civilization. There is certainly much truth in this conception, and Mrs. Buel has done a good thing in bringing it home so forcibly to her hearers and readers."—Providence Journal.

The book is an example of the artistic work of the University Press, being bound in white and gold, with design of musket and distaff. The illustrations are printed in sepia on the broad margins or let into the text, which is printed in handsome type.

Size 6⅝x9 inches; 60 pp. Price, $1.50 postage paid.

THOU ISRAEL

By Charles Francis Stocking, E. M.

A stupendous novel of present-day conditions, weaving a mighty theme in an absorbing story developed in a rare Syrian, Egyptian, and New World Setting. In its remarkable interpretation of life, death, mind, matter, and the future state it is a thought-compelling response to a world need.

CARMEN ARIZA

By Charles Francis Stocking, E. M.

The most powerful novel of religious and political intrigue ever written. Its diverse threads run from the Vatican to the trackless jungle of South America —from the Spanish Main to Washington and New York. Carmen Ariza and Thou Israel afford the final answer to the religious question and are the only novels that have handled it in a strictly scientific way and worked it out to a demonstrable solution.

Colored frontispiece, cloth cover, $2.50 net. Leather cover, $3.50 net. (Edition de Luxe) Leather cover, all gilt edges, $4.00 net. Postage, 15 cents.

THE DIARY OF JEAN EVARTS

By Charles Francis Stocking, E. M.

In this beautifully written treatise, composed by the author in the sun-kissed hills of California, a young girl in the last stages of tuberculosis, hopeless of human aid, and denouncing God and man-made creeds, receives a new truth—and with it a new sense of life. How this was accomplished is the vital message which this book has carried around the world to thousands of helpless, discouraged sin-weary sufferers becoming truly a "light shining in dark places."

Cloth, $1.75 net. Morocco, $4.00 net. Postage, 10c.

GALAXY OF COMING EVENTS

By REV. WILLIAM FRANCIS MANLEY

Relative to the return of the LORD JESUS CHRIST, who will sit on the throne of His father David, in Jerusalem; and reign over the whole earth for one thousand years.

This book gives THE THINGS THAT MUST COME TO PASS, before His coming, and at His coming, and after His coming, according to the Scriptures. And in the order in which they will occur.

Rev. Maurice Ruben, secretary of the Hebrew-Christian Alliance of America, says, "There is not a dull page in the 263 pages of its contents. We unhesitatingly commend this work as the most helpful exposition on the Book of Revelation we know of. Be sure and secure this book." PRICE $1.50.

Crystals from a Human Secretion

Crystals from A Known Solution

This Atlas contains two hundred and forty-eight pages, including one hundred and fourteen Photomicrographs of known Crystallizable Chemical Salts.

In compiling these photomicrographs no attempt has been made to exhaust the possible chemical combinations, but rather to present typical crystalline forms of various salts known to exist in the body tissues and fluids under normal and pathological conditions, thereby placing at the disposal of the student of research, auxiliary help toward the characteristics which confront him through the microscope.

THE PRESIDENT MAKER
By MAURICE F. LYONS

Mr. Lyons, one of the leading Members of the Bar of Kentucky, was Confidential Secretary to Hon. W. F. McCombs during the Prenomination and Presidential Campaigns for 1911-1912.
With a veracity that is startling, the author shows how Mr. McCombs created the sentiment which resulted in Woodrow Wilson's nomination for the Presidency.
The account of the great Baltimore Convention is captivating.
Mr. McCombs' failure to receive a cabinet appointment is for the first time correctly set forth.

THE NEWEST PUBLICATIONS

Makers of the Bible

By Hermon H. Severn

A manual of information about the processes through which the Bible came to be and was handed down.

The author's theme, the history of the Bible from the lost books that preceded it, through the story of its making, its early readers and translators, down to modern reconstruction of the best text from the manuscripts, necessarily occupies most of his attention. Scholarly in knowledge, clear in statement, he is also deeply reverent in spirit. $1.25 net.

Modern Money Methods for the Church

By Frederick A. Agar

The object of the author is to suggest ways whereby the local church may be delivered from unwise financial methods, and to outline a plan adapted to provide adequate financial resources for both the local and the wider Christian enterprise. $1.00 net.

The Christian Faith and Human Relations

The lecturers in this course were W. C. Bitting, Shailer Mathews, William Douglas MacKenzie, Roger W. Babson, and Edward Caldwell Moore. Their themes were the Family, the Community, the State, Industry, and International Relations. $1.25 net.

Race Grit

By Coe Hayne

Here are real life-stories which present the results of home missions, not simply in the cases of a few conspicuously outstanding members of the Negro race in America, but much rather among the average representatives of that people. $1.25 net.

A Manual of Church-Methods

By Frederick A. Agar

Organization, Enlistment, Utilizing, Education, Forms, and General Items—such are the chapter-headings in this eminently practical handbook. Plans, programs, and mechanics, however, are not emphasized here above the spiritual life of the church-member. $1.00 net.

The Withered Fig Tree

By Edwin M. Poteat

The author's purpose is to make clear the fundamental principles underlying the Stewardship movement and to furnish a basis for the organization of local leagues or groups of Christian stewards. $1.00 net.

By-Paths to Forgotten Folks

By Coe Hayne

Mr. Hayne has not taken cross-sections of fact; he has transplanted it alive. His stories of home mission work bring us into immediate contact with the living factors of human interest. It is as if we visited the homes of Indians, Alaskans, Nicaraguans, ranchmen, and foreign-speaking people, and made personal acquaintance with them. $1.25 net.

Rock-Breakers

By P. H. J. Lerrigo

Doctor Lerrigo proves himself an observant traveler and a luminous writer. The business of Christian missions and the human material these missions must handle are his supreme concern. He shows how a station is created, the abilities and weaknesses of the native people, the cooperation of the different denominations, and the achievements in personal character, and in family and community life. $1.25 net.

A MAN and HIS READING

By HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

Something very significant has happened to a man when he realizes that in books the greatest souls of the world will come to call on him as though there were no one else on earth whom they had to call upon.

"What do you read, my lord?" said Polonius, and Hamlet answered, "Words, words, words." Many a modern victim of the invention of printing might say the same. With all the reading that is done, how few people know the experience which made Mrs. Browning say, "No man can be called friendless who has God and the companionship of good books."

Some books are our servants. They run errands for us. They are mental drudges. They bring us information; they tell us news; they keep us up to date; they equip us for our trade. But the great books are not our slaves; they are our masters; we sit at their feet to learn. "Look," they say, and looking, we catch new visions of life's significance. "Consider," they say, and considering, we are captured by a new truth and our spiritual power is multiplied. A man's life is made by the hours when great ideas lay hold upon him and except by way of living persons there is no channel down which great ideas come oftener into human lives than by way of books. Said Charles Kingsley, "Save a living man, nothing is so wonderful as a book."

Many people shrink with a kind of modest reticence from claiming the greatest books as their own. They think that the great books are for scholars and specialists, not for plain people. Upon the contrary, the specialist has his library of learned messengers to run errands for him and for him alone, the engineer his books on engineering, the economist his books on economics, but the great books are for us all. They spring, not out of specialties, but out of the depths of the human heart. When Macbeth sins and his conscience faces remorse like a tide returning to a shore we all know what that means and whenever a great creative book strikes a deep note it is sure to be dealing with an elemental experience which is shared by us all. A significant day dawns in a man's life when he says to himself, "The supreme books of the world belong to me."

Most of the books we read are like the rain water that fell last night. It is a superficial matter and it soon runs off. But the literature of creative spiritual power is a whole sea—the accumulated spiritual gains of the ages—and to know it and love it, to go down beside it and dip into it, to feel its vast expanse, the currents that run through it, and the tides that lift it, are among the choicest and most rewarding privileges that man can enjoy.

Subject Classification

See BOOK and PAMPHLET sections for descriptions and prices

NO attempt has been made to place each book under all its possible classifications, or to subdivide the various groups exhaustively; but the effort has been made to form lists which will facilitate the search for material to fill specific needs.

In many cases equally helpful books may be found under several groupings. For that reason a careful scanning of the titles under the various headings is urged.

Technical terms are carefully avoided, and the subject is presented in a manner interesting to any layman.

By Archibald McCullough, A.M., D.D., LL.D.

Commentaries on the Bible that are in themselves interesting and arresting literature.

THE VERIFICATION OF CHEMISTRY $2.00

By Louis Matthews Sweet, S.T.D., Ph.D., Author of "Roman Emperor Worship"

Christianity is here dealt with according to the modern method of historical and critical research. The work is based upon a thorough study of the psychology of anti-Christian unbelief. The book is not so much an argument or series of arguments addressed to recognized opponents of Christianity as a body of suggestions framed for the help of seekers after truth who find themselves, for one reason and another, unable to believe.

THE BIOLOGICAL FOUNDATIONS OF BELIEF $1.50

By Wesley Raymond Wells, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, Colby College

The book is a behavioristic study of religious values. "Of interest both to the psychologist and to the philosopher of religion."—J. H. Leuba, in the Psychological Bulletin.

It maintains that religious beliefs may be biologically valuable and morally necessary regardless of their truth, and that they may survive indefinitely just because of their biological values.

POET LORE

Established 1889

Published quarterly. $1.50 a copy. $6.00 a year

Editors: HELEN CLARKE, CHARLOTTE PORTER, RUTH HILL

Poet Lore is the oldest and largest review in the English language devoted to poetry and drama. In its pages appears the best work of the world's greatest writers; for over thirty years it has been an active pioneer in promoting an interest in international letters. Maeterlinck, Hauptmann, Sudermann, Schnitzler, D'Annunzio, Gorki, Andreyev, Bjornson and Synge are among those Poet Lore has introduced to the American public.

"Those who love the best in poetry and drama will find in Poet Lore a literary feast."—The Pittsburg Post.

"It is a most excellent indication of the genuine love of high literature that the editors have been able to bring together so many distinct contributions of a suggestive and critical character. There is a freshness about the work which is inspiring, and the study is of that which is worth while, not the tiresome praise of the second rate."—Atlantic Monthly.

"A periodical that stands steadfastly for good literature and for the value of poetry in all walks of life."—The Dial.

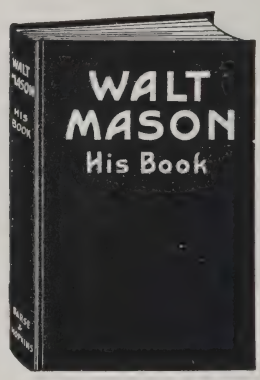
WALT MASON—HIS BOOK

With an Introduction by Irvin S. Cobb



Walt Mason's prose poetry is perhaps the most widely read of contemporary writers. William Allen White says: "How many millions of people are cheered year by year as they turn every day to those quaint verses! Here is a man doing a man's work in the world, making life brighter and more cheerful and more sensible in this vale of tears. Millions in money could do no more—if as much—as this man does at his day's work."

VEST POCKET ESSAYS

By GEORGE FITCH

"Vest Pocket Essays" are short talks—about four hundred words each—on miscellaneous subjects. "From Hope to Hash," "From Cabbages to Kings." Fitch's humor is good-natured, yet there is a wealth of meaning behind this fun. It is above all things a philosophic humor, though he is never cynically smart, and when he takes certain institutions to task he does it in a kindly manner.

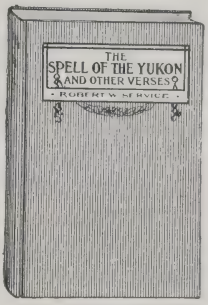
Books by ROBERT W. SERVICE

The amazing and increasing popularity of Robert W. Service's books can only be accounted for in the excellence of the poems themselves. They strike a universal chord in the heart of humanity. If you have not already met Service, do not lose another day. If you have, it is "up to you" to present him to some friend.

THE SPELL OF THE YUKON

And Other Verses. "Songs of a Sourdough."



Cloth

Service's first great book was originally called "Songs of a Sourdough," and is thus known to thousands of readers in Canada and England. In the United States it is even better known by the title "The Spell of the Yukon." It has already become a classic. Here are poems of irresistible truth and power which hold the reader enthralled.

The scene is the Yukon, and the characters are real men —men of flesh and blood, who talk in direct and virile language, who have primal instincts and passions, who toil, sin, dream, accomplish and despair. Strong and outspoken are these poems—a man's message to men—yet fit for the reading of all, because they are true. This popular book is now published in three sizes and varied styles to suit every taste.

Cloth

Do you know what a Cheechako is? If not, read this book and find out! Mr. Service makes the men of whom he writes in this companion book to "The Spell of the Yukon" live in a manner so true, so realistic, that the reader lives with them the free, broad life of fellowship of the campfire, of strife, of toil, of hardship. The keen wind of the Northland sweeps across its pages, and one rises refreshed, as from a tramp through the snows.

The "Ballads" come in three different editions, same size and style of the preceding volume. Together they give an unforgettable chronicle of the Yukon country.

RHYMES OF A RED CROSS MAN

By ROBERT W. SERVICE

Flexible

By all odds the most powerful and popular book of poems by a single author emanating from the Great War. Written amid the din and roar of battle, these vivid pen pictures show the sunny side of war. A writer in The Dial, voicing many other opinions, says:

"Detail after detail of life at the front takes its place in the various narratives, adding touches of excitement, pathos, terror, tenderness, or humor, and in the end imbuing this particular reader with a closer sense of life in the Great War than any correspondent, novelist, or poet has yet given him—making it so natural, straightforward, first-hand, vibrant, that if you are like me you will close the book with a painful silence in the ears that follows great sound and the flush in the head that comes from the sight of broken bodies and the squeeze in the throat that comes in the presence of honest human emotion. It is not a criticism from without, but a cry from within—dignifying even 'Tipperary.' We have been inquiring for the poetry of the War. In my judgment, here it is."

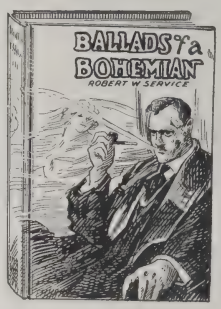
BALLADS OF A BOHEMIAN

By ROBERT W. SERVICE



Cloth

This volume of verse is the largest that Service has thus far written. It is full of humor, of pathos, of tragedy, of passion, of sentiment, such as only Service can fully express. And because it is a human document by a master hand, its publication is an event of prime importance.

It is a panorama of life in four parts—Spring, Early Summer, Late Summer and Winter. Before our eyes pass a swift succession of vivid pictures—of a poor poet's garret, of the cafés, the absinthe drinkers, the boulevards, of the various queer neighbors—artists, little sewing girls, cocottes, grisettes—all the busy, jostling life of the Latin Quarter of Paris.

good books

An announcement of the publications of BONI & LIVERIGHT, New York City, for Autumn, 1922, together with a list of previous publications including The Modern Library.

THE STORY OF MANKIND

by Hendrik Willem Van Loon

Octavo size, over five hundred pages. With over one hundred and fifty black and white line illustrations, eight four-color pages and numerous animated maps, half-tone pictures, and an animated chronology of the history of the world, all done by the author. Together with detailed contents and bibliography, comprehensive index, etc.

NO book by an American in recent years has so quickly won for itself the recognition accorded to THE STORY OF MANKIND. Hendrik Willem Van Loon is now regarded as the founder of a new school for the writing of books of history. At the time this catalogue goes to press (June, 1922), 50,000 copies of THE STORY OF MANKIND have been sold. It is true that, compared with the sale of other works of non-fiction, THE STORY OF MANKIND creates almost a new record. Nevertheless, it is amazing that in a country of 110,000,000 people, a quarter of a million copies of this wonderful book should not already have been purchased by intelligent men and women, and we confidently predict that this figure will be reached in the near future.

It is impossible to quote from the thousands of enthusiastic reviews of this epoch-making work. Professor Charles A. Beard sums up the criticism when he says: "For grasp on historic fact, for style, and for insight, I prefer plain Mr. Van Loon (without his Ph.D.) to Bishop Bossuet or Bishop Wells. He has written a great book—one that will endure."

"The Modern Don Quixote"

BABEL

by John Cournos

Author of The Mask and The Wall

JOHN GOULD FLETCHER, the American poet, living in London, says:

> "Cournos has written a book that is unlike any other in the world. John Gombarov, the hero of Babel, is the modern Don Quixote,—and the book is so much like Don Quixote that it might have been written by Cervantes had he lived in our times. There are windmills in the shape of Babel's great men*—there is Dulcinea, there is a hint of Sancho Panza, and, above all, there are adventures! When this book is published the author may really rest on his oars because I do not believe that the world will let his book die."

Briefly, Babel is the story of a modern Don Quixote's adventures in modern London; the story of a disillusioned seeker brought into conflict with a decaying and disintegrating society. It may be read as a document showing with unflinching realism the true nature of the disease from which our Occidental world is suffering, or as a parable for all time, revealing with daring fantasy how the spirit is still able to conquer and subdue the destructive chaos of the world about it, and to grow in strength and hope through the stages of its struggle.

Since writing The Mask and The Wall, Mr. Cournos has grown immeasurably in power and mental stature. London lives and breathes in this novel, the London that attracted Doestoyevsky more than any of the capitals of Europe, the London of Defoe and of Dickens and of today, as it lives and breathes in no other novel that has been published in many years.

John Macy, the distinguished critic, says: "If Babel does not succeed in the market, then as Mr. Bumble said about the law, the market is an ass. It is an original and honest piece of work, much of it very beautiful. Its stream moves as does life and love."

(To be published August 29th).....$2.50

 Discussion will soon be rife regarding these great men. How many of you will be able to recognize Wells, Bennett, Shaw, and the other great men in Babel as they enter Mr. Cournos's illuminating pages?*

BEYOND ROPE AND FENCE

by David Grew

"DEAR GREW:

You've done it! I refused an invitation to go to the theatre last night because I'd started your manuscript coming in on the train and wanted to do nothing else until I'd finished it. Write your own contract. It's the best animal story I've ever read. I like it better than even Jack London's The Call of the Wild, largely because it seems so much truer. I'm sure, after all you've told me in our various talks, that your story of this group of wild horses battling against man's persistent effort to enslave them is pretty much as you saw it yourself where the outposts of civilization face the great north prairie wilderness. What a heroine you've created in Queen, the buckskin mare. And how you've made me feel that wild animals have a real social life; that they love and mate and have friends and enemies just as we have. And how you've conveyed to me the fascination of the life of the animals on the western prairies. When Queen was first captured by the homesteaders and when I read your poignant but untheatrical tale of man's selfishness and greed and his treatment of these lovely creatures, I was deeply touched. But I went to bed happy when Queen led her herd to liberty after she saw the Moose cross the frozen Saskatchewan and realized that she too could triumph over man and find her freedom in those wilds which man has not yet penetrated.

I like Beyond Rope and Fence better than any manuscript I've read this year. I promise you that I'll put all I have into making it the tremendous success I think it should be. I'm sure that my wife and mother will like it, that my brothers and sisters will like it, and that my two children will like it just as much. It's a book for everybody and it ought to sell 100,000 copies. Unless you telephone me to the contrary, I'll look for you at the Algonquin at 1:00 on Thursday."

This letter from the publisher to the author tells its own story.

Handsomely decorated cloth binding and frontispiece in colors.

ROSE MACAULAY'S

Most Amazing Novel

MYSTERY AT GENEVA

THINK OF IT! A mystery story by that most sophisticated of all modern English writers, the author of POTTERISM and DANGEROUS AGES. But, of course, Mystery at Geneva isn't just another mystery story. Like all of Rose Macaulay's novels, it's up-to-the-minute and after-the-minute appraisal of what's happening today and tomorrow and about who is making it happen.

The story is about some future assembly of some sort of League of Nations at Geneva and it tells about the mysterious disappearances of one prominent person after another. Henry Beechtree, the correspondent of The British Bolshevist (and there is a deep, deep mystery about him which it wouldn't be fair to disclose here), tries to get to the bottom of all of the peculiar goings-on. One morning Henry picks up "L'Humeur." He finds that "L'Humeur" isn't really very funny. As Miss Macaulay says: "It has only one joke, only one type of comic picture: a woman incompletely dressed. Was that, Henry speculated, really funny? It happens, after all, to nearly every woman at least each morning and each evening. Nothing, perhaps, was funny. The League of Nations was not funny. Life was not funny and probably not death. Even the British Bolshevist, which he was reduced to reading, wasn't funny." . . . When Henry glances up from his funny paper he sees "strolling by on the quay a very neat, agreeable looking and gentlemanly fellow, exquisitely cleaned, shaved and what novelists called groomed (one supposes this to be a kind of rubbing down process to make the skin glossy)." This is Charles Wilbrahan, a member of the League Secretariat, and it is Wilbrahan whom Henry later suspects of being concerned in all of the amazing happenings. It is with the help of Wilbrahan's secretary and of a local ex-cardinal and of a number of typical Rose Macaulayesque women and men that Henry tries to collect evidence to convict his suspected villain. Readers of Potterism will remember that Rose Macaulay can write a mystery story, and while Mystery at Geneva is more of a mystery story than anything else,—which means, of course, that the denouement cannot be related without spoiling the story, —Miss Macaulay in this novel is wittier and more audaciously satirical than ever before. It is conceded both here and in England that no other living author can write the sort of novels that Rose Macaulay writes, half so well as she.

HEARTBEAT

by Stacy Aumonier

Author of Just Outside, The Querrils, One After Another, etc.

STACY AUMONIER is regarded as one of the foremost young English novelists. His work has been accepted by the leading critics on both sides of the Atlantic as of a very high order. In England his books have had a wide sale. In this country, however, for reasons entirely beyond our comprehension, Mr. Aumonier's thoroughly human and appealing novels, which surely have far greater popular appeal than those of almost any other distinguished writer, have been bought by only the five or six thousand book-readers who have recognized in him that subtlety and charm possessed by Leonard Merrick. After years of neglect, Mr. Merrick has come into his own.

In publishing Mr. Aumonier's work for the first time, we urge everyone who enjoys a thrilling story, simply and amazingly well done, to read Heartbeat. In Barbara Powerscourt, the daughter of a music-hall favorite and a Lord Chancellor of England, Mr. Aumonier has drawn a brilliant portrait of an appealing young woman with an unhappy heritage and an early environment of repression. Some of her adventures remind one of Shaw's Madge in Love Among the Artists, while the fine characterization of George Champneys, the actor-manager, who plays such a significant role in Barbara's life, may suggest to many Leonard Merrick at his best. Some, again, may compare Heartbeat with Moore's A Mummer's Wife, but Heartbeat must not be regarded only as a story of the stage or stage-life. It is a deeply penetrating psychological study of a more or less average woman, so replete in amazing incident that one is forced to remark at times, "melodrama." Melodrama only as life is melodramatic, only as the astounding events in our daily newspapers are melodramatic.

EDGAR SALTUS'S

Last and Best Novel

THE GHOST GIRL

SUPPOSE you were standing in Central Park with your best friend, whose wife (Nellie Chilton) had mysteriously been lost to him on the day of their marriage, when, as Edgar Saltus says: "Descending the steps was Nellie Chilton—she or her ghost. I looked up at Bradish, looked without consciously seeing him, looked again at her, for her rather. She was no longer there. During the shift of my eyes, she had vanished. The tourists then were directly in front of me. One of them, a man, was asking me something. I flung him aside, flung myself through the others, flung myself beyond and looked. Not a trace! On the other side of the path were bushes. No one! Near by was an arbour. Empty!"

A few weeks before his death Edgar Saltus sent us the manuscript of The Ghost Girl and said of it: "It's the best thing I've ever done. It's not easy to write either a good mystery story or to make psychic phenomena plausible. But I've done both this time and if The Ghost doesn't sell, I'm through with writing."

Mr. Saltus has transformed a beautiful girl—an aristocrat—as if by magic into an apparition. The mystery of her supposed death, intensified by the grief of her husband and the machinations of the other man who loves her, is told not by a hack writer of thrillers but by one of the finest writers of English prose. Nellie Chilton is seen in all her ghostly loveliness—to evaporate ethereally—and then to be seen again. There is a breathless suspense which attends the unravelling of this beautiful mystery. There is the glamour of beautiful homes; there is the romance of an elusive love affair; there is contact with brilliant minds and unusually interesting characters. It is a story of mystery and of love, so intriguing as to make one wish to read everything that Edgar Saltus ever wrote.

ASCENT

by Frances Rumsey

MRS. RUMSEY'S first novel, Mr. Cushing and Mlle. du Chastel, showed a maturity of skill in character drawing and ingenuity in theme and situation that were startling for a first book. The critics and discriminating readers were skeptical that the work was by a new writer; yet it was. The book was praised and admired in England, America and France. Mrs. Rumsey has written little since then, except one long short-story, Cash, which appeared in The Century (August, 1920), a story which attracted attention everywhere. The present novel, Ascent, will not disappoint the readers of her earlier work. Here will be found a most provocative theme, treated with artistic restraint, shrewd analysis and understanding of character, together with a prose style so fine in its structure that one is tempted while reading the narrative to stop and reread many passages.

This is the story of an American woman, a creature of education and circumstance, who, in order to satisfy the peculiarities of her character, moves deliberately to affect the lives of people disadvantageously. She works close to danger, though always conscious of her ability to step aside before a crisis is reached. It is a fascinating tale of a cold-blooded woman, who believes that she ascends higher by her methods and attitudes—but whether she does or not will be decided by the reader.

DOUBTING CASTLE

by Elinor Chipp

DOUBTING CASTLE is the tale of three persons: Gloria and Richard—and Irene; of youth and middle-age; of the bonds of marriage and free passion. In Doubting Castle we have the larger family group, vividly portrayed, serving as the setting for the romance of the middle-aging childless married pair for whom, in recent fiction, misfortune has so persistently lain in wait. But this romance of Richard and Irene, this tale of married life, gets most of its special meaning through the contact its actors have with Gloria. Gloria's is the unmistakably creative portrait, and while at times Miss Chipp must strongly recall John Galsworthy to the reader's mind, her Gloria reminds us of nobody in fiction, and yet we at the same time feel her truth both as type and as person. She is a tragic embodiment of youthful passionate love. Hers to be sure is the absorbed and self-centered passion of the "child who wants" rather than the self-forgetful devotion of mature love (which Irene has), but it is not gross, it does not depend on, is hardly affected by, the physical act of love.

Pagan, or not, this Gloria, this child-heart unprotected, somehow embodies a personality of poignant appeal, a universal and perennial feminine type.

Doubting Castle is the first novel by Miss Chipp, a young American woman, who in her first book takes rank with the best creative artists in this country.

THE SINGING CAPTIVES

by E. B. C. Jones

Author of Quiet Interior

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS says of Miss E. B. C. Jones: "She is as meticulous as the Arnold Bennett of twelve years ago, as discerning as the Frank Swinnerton of five years ago, and as sparkling as the Rose Macaulay of last year." The Dial called Quiet Interior "easily the most distinguished first novel of many seasons." Llewellyn Jones, the distinguished critic says: "Quiet Interior puts its author in the front rank of English women novelists." The New York Evening Post Literary Review wrote: "Her book can be read with admiration more than twice. It is with the greatest hope and pleasure that the present reviewer, at least, looks forward to her next novel."

This "next" novel—The Singing Captives—takes for its thesis Webster's line in The White Devil: "We think caged birds sing when indeed they cry." Frankly, it is a difficult novel to describe or catalogue. It is, like Quiet Interior, a tale of spiritual adventures. It tells the story of a typical wealthy upper-class English family. Into this cultured, suave, well-mannered home of Lord "Hal" and Lady Peel, Rodin, the oldest son, brings as his wife a pretty typist whom he has picked up in a park. This is the second jolt that this well-mannered house has suffered, for Caroline's sweetheart, whom she loved passionately, has been killed in the war. The third thunderbolt strikes when Father "Hal", who has been speculating more than ever in the "City," loses practically all of his money. The time comes for calm appraisal. After all, what does family pride amount to when home, furniture, cars must be sold and six maids dismissed? What, after all, does anything amount to if the structure of happiness has been built on sand instead of the solid rock of character? Birds cannot sing in captivity. Man shall not live by bread alone.

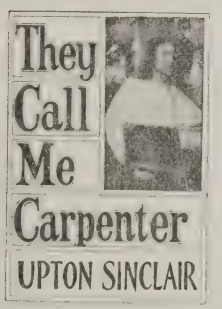
THEY CALL ME CARPENTER

by Upton Sinclair

Jacket Illustration by Lucius Wolcott Hitchcock

WHAT would Christ do if He should return to earth to-day? This is the question men and women—sincere or sneering—have been asking each other for two thousand years. Reverently, yet fearlessly, Upton Sinclair sets out to answer that question. No novel of our time has caused a greater sensation than Upton Sinclair's The Jungle—novel of the Chicago stockyards. But that will pale into insignificance compared with the story of "Mr. Carpenter" and His adventures in our world of Jazz, Flappers, French Fashions and High Finance. It all begins with the stained glass window of St. Bartholomew's Church on the Broadway of the capital of the motion picture industry of America.

In spite of the reverent spirit that permeates his novel, the author has drawn some of the most humorous characters and has painted some of the most ridiculously funny scenes in contemporary American fiction; humor for which probably only the motion picture world could furnish such a background.



Upton Sinclair considers They Call Me Carpenter his most entertaining book. It is a highly fantastic yet strangely moving romance with little of the controversial or propagandist spirit that animated The Brass Check, which has sold over 130,000 copies. This is not to say, however, that it may not be attacked by those who today understand the message of The Carpenter no more clearly than their ancestors did nineteen hundred years ago. When They Call Me Carpenter recently appeared in Hearst's Magazine, it created tremendous discussion.

MY ALASKAN IDYLL

by Hjalmar Rutzebeck

Author of Alaska Man's Luck

WHEN we published Alaska Man's Luck some eighteen months ago, we said that we firmly believed that it was the best book of its kind we had ever read and was not to be considered as a book for merely one or two seasons. At that time we said that while comparisons are dangerous, we believed that Alaska Man's Luck would some day be found on the same shelf with such fine red-blooded books of the out-doors as Robinson Crusoe, David Balfour, The Call of the Wild, etc. Our confidence in Rutzebeck's first book has been justified by its steadily increasing sales.

My Alaskan Idyll begins with the coming of The Alaska Man and his bride to their new homestead. Together they cut wood and build their cabin, plant their gardens after clearing the rough forest ground, tend to the little homely details that are the essence of pioneering always.

They spend happy days without much financial success, prospecting for gold farther North. They return to their homestead; their crops fail them, but the husband and wife are so happy in their love and in making their home that they ride every storm. . . . Svend then accepts a watchman's position in a big cannery in Haines. A murder occurs. An attempt is made to fasten the blame on Svend, but after long hearings at Juneau he is set free. With their young Viking, who has been born in the spring, Svend and Marian return to their homestead. Their debt has been cleared off and they have saved up $500. Svend's book Alaska Man's Luck is at last finished, and after the long winter, which they spend in their little home, comes the news of Svend's greatest triumph, the news that his book has been accepted for publication.

Everyone who has read My Alaskan Idyll considers it even better than Alaska Man's Luck. In England, where it has just been published by T. Fisher Unwin, its success was so genuine that a large reprinting was necessary after the first reviews appeared.

THEODORE DREISER'S

First Book Since Twelve Men

A BOOK ABOUT MYSELF

THEODORE DREISER has written honest novels; now he has written honest autobiography. In this volume the author tells of his newspaper days—from the time he became a reporter on the old Chicago Record until he finally reached New York, his Mecca, but only to be cast out of the offices of the New York Herald, told by an assistant night city editor that as a reporter he was a failure.

Here is a record, not only of experiences, of events, of people, but a chronicle of emotional reactions to a world that was cruel and wonderful, beautiful and passionate, colorful and romantic, at once depressing and inspiring.

Here are pictures of cities, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, New York—during that amazing period of the nineties, as they have never been pictured before.

Through these pages you get close to humanity because it is peopled with human beings and every one of them is seen with sympathetic eyes and pictured with discerning power.

You will meet again and know better My Brother Paul and Peter of Twelve Men. You will meet the father of the author and his sisters, and you will read of the disintegration of a family; a break up of family ties, told so movingly, so simply you would never credit an American writer with the courage or the ability to do it.

You will follow a keen reporter on his stories and not only see the stories but all that lay behind them. You will come to know a gangling, self-confident, self-depreciating, conceited, trembling, bold, fearsome youth —all in the person of Theodore Dreiser.

You will finally come to understand why this foremost American author came to write the novels that won him his high recognition, because you will have been with him as he lived and loved and triumphed and suffered.

You will gain an education in the philosophy of life itself because you will follow the path that Dreiser took and at each step of the way learn about life from him as he learned about life from life.

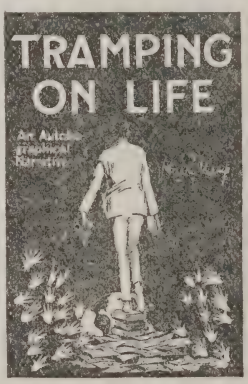
TRAMPING ON LIFE

A Somewhat Autobiographical Narrative

by Harry Kemp

FOR many years past the newspapers and magazines of America have at various times devoted column after column to the escapades and audacities, the beautiful adventures of the spirit and the sometimes more sensational adventures of the flesh that sum up Harry Kemp, Poet. In Tramping on Life, John Gregory is a thinly disguised Harry Kèmp, and here for the first time Kemp bares his soul and tells how he dared seek, on frank terms of vagrancy, that which other artists have seldom ventured forth to find. To Kemp poetry meant everything in life and he chose to be nothing but a poet in the midst of an industrial middle-class civilization distinctly hostile to tramping or attic dwelling in Bohemia. As Kemp says: "I have lived and loved according to Shelley, instead of Bradstreet."

And so, honestly, strangely, grotesquely, naively, often deliberately without a sense of humor, he narrates his curious adventures as a poetic tramp; on freights, and in and out of jail, on the high seas, in school and college . . . Without a sense of humor? Yes. For Kemp says: "The soul knows no such thing as a sense of humor." And in his book he shows his soul as it was during childhood and youth and during that period of bitter struggle every artist must go through before he is successful.



Many of the most interesting characters in American letters and politics appear in these pages. Some of them befriended him, all contributed in some way to make his autobiography one of the most amazing self-revelations since Marie Bashkirtseff's and one of the most interesting diaries since Jean Christophe.

THE GOLDEN CALF

by Francis Hackett

MR. HACKETT, who was for years Literary Editor of The New Republic, feels that the escape of the Puritan remains the problem of America. Ex-Puritans fill Greenwich Village. They give to Freud a devotion worthy of the Epworth League. They wince at their humble origin in Indiana and warble about beauty. They despise everything democratic and become Vanity Fairies. They try to escape from standards and loyalties which in the end prove inescapable. Mr. Hackett feels that they can possibly be saved by another way of life which keeps responsibility but combines it with tolerance, discipline and imagination.

Our extreme Lefts in literature, and for that matter in all departments of life, may feel that in The Golden Calf Mr. Hackett, in departing for Europe, has also departed from the ranks of the foremost liberal thinkers and writers of this country. However, even a hasty reading of this fine work, its sincere and brilliant logic, must convince the most ardent believer in "freedom" that a fine philosophy of life must include such ideals as friendship, loyalty, and sanity.

Following is a list of the chapter headings in The Golden Calf:

Batik, Hootch and Henna
Our Sentimental Carols
The Psycho-Antics
From Greenville to Montmartre
Sin and Sincerity
Our Amateur Supermen
The Highbrows
The Half-Gods and the Half-Baked
The Fallacies of Freedom
How Can the Puritan be Saved

THE CRITICAL GAME

by John Macy

Author of The Spirit of American Literature, etc.

MR. MACY'S idea is that criticism is simply one form of the game of writing; that its chief function is to be readable and that the essential merit of any good critical essay lies in the skill with which the game is played. He thinks that criticism should be taken with the same seriousness and the same lightness as any other kind of art. This idea is developed in the introductory chapter, which alone is worth the price of the book, and is illustrated by essays on a wide variety of authors. Among them are Dante, Shakespeare, Tolstoy, Nietzsche, Maeterlinck, Conrad, Strindberg, Tagore, De Gourmont, Swift, William James, Poe, Hardy, Borrow, Shelley, Whitman, George Moore, Masefield, H. G. Wells, James Joyce, D. H. Lawrence.

Those who have read The Spirit of American Literature (which is, by the way, one of the most popular books in our Modern Library) will find in The Critical Game somewhat the same qualities. The essays are solemn or humorous, enthusiastic or censorious, according to the subject. The dominant theme of the book is that literature is to be enjoyed, and that talk about literature is of no value unless it is enjoyable, unless it is itself literature.

THE STORY OF UTOPIAS

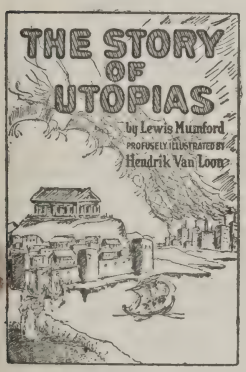
Ideal Commonwealths and Social Myths

by Lewis Mumford

With an introduction by HENDRIK VAN LOON

THIS book comes as a supplement to the Stories of Mankind that have been written these last few years. The first part of it is devoted to a realistic description of the perfect communities that the great thinkers have dreamed of. Here for the first time are brought together and interpreted the various descriptions of "the good life" which have been set down from the time of Plato to that of Mr. H. G. Wells.

The second part begins with an analysis of what is wrong with the classic Utopias; and it goes on to bring out the weakness of the various idealisms which, during the past three hundred years, have sought by reform or revolution to improve the existing order. And finally Mr. Mumford gives us an incisive analysis of the foundations upon which "the good life" may be built. This examination rejects the current philosophies of conservatism and of radicalism as well, and is in the opinion of not only the publishers but of several of the best minds of America, one of the most illuminating challenges to fresh thinking all along the line that has appeared in America in many years.



Mr. Mumford, who is undoubtedly one of the most capable writers of English in this country today, writes: "I have been brooding over the materal for this book during the last ten years, and it needed only the physical and moral intellectual disintegration of the present period to stir me to put it together. For the older generation of disillusioned reformers and the younger one of disillusioned reactionaries, the aim of this study is to build a bridge back again into realities which neither, apparently, has the gumption to face."

Once again the publishers remark that comparisons are dangerous to make, but they cannot resist the temptation of remarking that in its field The Story of Utopias is as significant as Professor Robinson's fine book, The Mind In The Making, is in its own.

IN THE COURT OF PUBLIC OPINION

A Study of the New Profession of Public Relations Counsel

by Edward L. Bernays

EDWARD L. BERNAYS, who for ten years has been actively engaged as a public relations counsel, is a graduate of Cornell University, 1912, a member of a scientific family and a nephew of Prof. Sigmund Freud. The author, now chief of his own organization, has for the past few years been working in the political fields, both for his own and other governments and in the industrial, philanthropic, civic, educational and art fields. He developed the practical technique for his future work in his connection with Klaw and Erlanger as a press agent, leading up to his work with Caruso and the Diaghileff Russian Ballet in 1915 and 1916, and his launching of the first performance of Damaged Goods. As head of a section of the United States Committee on Public Information here and in Paris at the Peace Conference, Mr. Bernays' wide experience with questions of a national and international character enables him to present to the public the first book dealing with public opinion from the standpoint of the professional man who is engaged from day to day in estimating the quality, character, and tendencies that influence human reactions.

Mr. Bernays' book on this new science of Public Relations Counsel gives it a definite and useful place in the present social structure, defines scope and functions, and by specific examples drawn from his own experience explains the status of the new profession. These examples supply a human interest value to this book which makes it a fascinating work for the layman as well as for the student of public relations; and to those whose work brings them into contact with the forces of public opinion its practical value and scientific significance make it indispensable. Mr. Bernays establishes the technical and ethical principles upon which this new profession must be built, and he excoriates those who misuse their power and sharply defines the obligations which the public relations counsel must assume.

THE EVENING POST

A Century of Journalism

by Allan Nevins

With Eight Full-Page Half-Tone Illustrations

NO other American newspaper has so splendid a history as The Evening Post, which was founded by Alexander Hamilton and whose editors have included William Cullen Bryant, Carl Schurz, E. L. Godkin, Horace White, Parke Godwin, John Bigelow and Rollo Ogden. Established more than 120 years ago, it is the oldest of the greater American dailies. . . . But this book is a great deal more than the history of a newspaper. A searching study of its files by Mr. Nevins has yielded many editorial comments and news items which make his story an interesting and significant contribution to the sidelights of national history. In addition Mr. Nevins' material has been supplemented by important data drawn from the unpublished correspondence of Hamilton, Bryant, Carl Schurz, John Bigelow and E. L. Godkin. The place of The Evening Post in the development of New York City from a mere town of 60,000 people to its present position is also a fascinating story which is here fully told for the first time.

The Evening Post was the accepted spokesman of Hamiltonian doctrine until the Federalist Party died; the first important newspaper to attack the protective tariff system; the first journal of the Middle States to defend the Abolitionists. Its advocacy of free soil, civil service reform, and its powerful opposition to the free silver movement, the Spanish war, and Imperialism, and in municipal politics its struggle against Tammany, its fight against the Tweed Ring and its stand for decency and progress distinguish The Evening Post as one of the most remarkably consistent liberal publications America has ever known. And since an early date The Post has been noted for its literary features, while its musical and dramatic criticisms are covered in this volume from the days of the Old Park Theatre a century and a quarter ago, to the present time.

So much has been included in Mr. Nevins's volume regarding The Evening Post's contemporaries that it really has many of the elements of a history of New York journalism during the last hundred years. It is the opinion of those who have read this manuscript that it is the most notable contribution of its kind that has been offered in this generation.

THE WHITE HEART OF MOJAVE

by Edith Brush Perkins

With Eight Full-Page Half-Tone Illustrations

AN atlas will show a great empty space just East of the Sierra Nevada Range and the San Bernardino Mountains, vaguely designated as the Mojave Desert. The greater part of Southern California, that much advertised home of the biggest fruit and flowers in the world, is included in it. A few criss-cross lines indicate mountains; the words Death Valley are printed between two groups of these mountains. And into this valley two women smilingly entered.

What a thrilling narrative is this tale of the adventures and experiences of two women, courageous and staunch enough to penetrate and explore this country in their search for "the terrible fascination" of the Mojave desert which they had heard so much about. Many of the incidents that fill these pages are more exciting than good short stories. And there is beauty and feeling, too. It is almost unbelievable that two highly cultured women could possess the courage to go forth, deliberately, and spend so much time in this extraordinary and cruel waste, where even the huskiest of men hesitate to go.

The White Heart of Mojave is an extraordinarily well written story of the trials and observations of these two brave women. It is dedicated to all lovers of big spaces, the wind and the vigorous sun.

THE WASTELAND

by T. S. Eliot

MANY poets who became prominent during the contemporary American poetic renascence have sunk quietly into forgetfulness. T. S. Eliot, however, is a name which has acquired a leading significance during the same period. The qualities of Mr. Eliot's verse are enduring. They represent in many ways the keenest inquiry into our lives which American poetry can boast since Ezra Pound entered the lyric lists. Subtle, ironic, and molded to the peculiar form of Mr. Eliot's mind, this poet's work, highly individualistic, has run to caricature of genuine realities, set off by flashes of rhythm and color. He knows how to draw people—not always within the knowledge of a poet—and deals largely with the people he sees around him.

The Wasteland is the longest poem T. S. Eliot has ever written and is the first poetry that he has written in the last three years. Mr. Eliot writes from London that this volume represents a new phase in his development, being the ripe fruit of his experimentation in all of his previous work.

T. S. Eliot is a man to be reckoned with, now, and hereafter, among the few unique talents of the times.

The Wasteland will be one of the most beautifully printed and bound books that has ever borne our imprint.

THE SWAN and FASHIONS FOR MEN

Two Full Length Plays in One Volume

by Franz Molnar

Author of Liliom

LILIOM was the most eventful play of an unusually fine theatrical season. In book form its sale has been larger than that of many popular novels. We predict the same dramatic success for the two fine plays in this volume and at least as great a success for the book itself as Liliom has enjoyed.

The Frohman season at the Empire Theatre will be inaugurated this autumn by the presentation of Molnar's The Swan, which created an even greater sensation in Vienna, Budapest and other Continental capitals than did Liliom. The Swan was the furore of Europe for many months. It is a satire on the ways and customs of royalty written with all of the beauty, realism and delicacy that distinguished Liliom.

Fashions for Men, which will also be seen on the New York stage this year, is a satire too, but broader in its humor and more in the spirit of Schnitzler's Anatol than anything else that Molnar has written, with the possible exception of his famous Dialogues, which are now appearing in the various American magazines, and which will appear in book form next year.

The publishers' arrangements with the producers make it impossible to give fuller descriptions of these two plays, and inasmuch as the date of publication depends upon the production of The Swan, it is impossible to set a more definite one than Autumn, 1922.

MY BOOK OF HOURS

by Franz Masereel

Introduction by Romain Rolland

AN astounding book. Not a line of text except an introduction and preface, and yet Franz Masereel's genius in these 167 illustrations (which he calls images) tells a story that few masters of the written word could equal in clarity, intensity and depth of psychological understanding.

My Book of Hours tells the story of a man who goes into life with young eyes, with a spirit fresh and naive, with strong, young limbs, with a heart full of love and tenderness. Everything interests him, everything is new for him, he wishes to know everything, to love everything, and to hurl himself into the stream of life . . . only to come out wounded, bitter, skeptical. . . . He is wise now; his eyes are more sophisticated, his spirit curbed . . . his strength is sapped by vices, and he mocks at the strong; his heart is sad. He seeks solitude, wishes to die alone like a savage wolf, but his spirit is reborn in a mocking and . . . laugh.

Romain Rolland says: "May this Book of Hours carry to America the name and the fame of Franz Masereel! And may it bear witness to the inexhaustible life-force which still bursts forth from that genial, heroic old country of Flanders."

Surely one of the most startlingly original books that have ever appeared in this country.

Strictly limited to 600 numbered copies (no editorial copies being printed). A fine example of beautiful book-making.

(To be published September 15th).....$5.00

THERE are few writers whose work recreates life as does Anzia Yezierska's. The passionate longings, the naive philosophies, the warm sympathies of her characters are conveyed to the reader so faithfully that he feels he is actually living among them. Hungry Hearts won for its author a high place among contemporary writers. In Salome of the Tenements, this new romance of an East Side girl, driven by a deathless passion for beauty to burn through the barriers of race, class, and creed, Miss Yezierska makes her bow to her large and steadily growing public as a full-fledged novelist.

SALOME OF THE TENEMENTS

by Anzia Yezierska

Author of Hungry Hearts, etc.

Sonya Vrunsky, the Salome of a New York tenement, flashes like a comet into the lives of two men,—Manning, the millionaire philanthropist, and Hollins, the God of Fifth Avenue Fashion. As Miss Yezierska says: "Sonya, my heroine, and Manning, tricked into matrimony, were the Oriental and the Anglo-Saxon trying to find a common language. That is the theme of my novel. The over-emotional Ghetto struggling for its breath in the thin air of Puritan restraint. An East Side savage forced suddenly into the strait-jacket of American civilization. Sonya was like the dynamite bomb, and Manning the walls of tradition constantly menaced by threatening explosions."

Salome of the Tenements is neither a "glad" book nor a sad book. It is a burning romance of one Sonya Vrunsky, and Sonya Vrunsky is merely the prototype of hundreds of thousands of lovely young girls who have in them the same passion for beauty and life.

Who is  Warner Fabian?

FLAMING YOUTH is the story of the super-flapper, of her affairs at country clubs and cozy home-dances with all the accompaniments of prohibition stimulants. Warner Fabian believes that the youth of this country feeds on excitement and rushes to knowledge "heeled" by way of petting parties and the elemental stimulus of jazz. The barriers of convention are down. Youth makes its own standards and innocence, according to the author, has been superseded by omniscience.

It doesn't matter that Warner Fabian is a nom de plume which conceals the identity of one of the ablest scientists of this country who has dared to look facts in the face, facts physical, moral and emotional. He has written the truth about youth, the youth of today as he sees it.

FLAMING YOUTH

by Warner Fabian

is the writing on the wall. It is the Quo Vadis of the present moment.

Those who are following in The Metropolitan Magazine the fortunes of Pat, the most sophisticated and yet at the same time one of the most deliciously lovely heroines of recent novels, and the fortunes of her two sisters, may protest that Mr. Fabian's portrayal of youth in this novel is outscotting Fitzgerald and overdancing in the Dark. We feel, however, that this story of three girls and their many men is one which may sufficiently frighten mothers and electrify fathers and hit the younger set hard enough between the eyes to help America's youth to, at least, a gradual return to sanity.

At the time this catalogue goes to press, this book, which has been called "the most important autobiography since The Education of Henry Adams," is in its fifth edition and its sale since its appearance in April has greatly increased each month.

UP STREAM

An American Chronicle

by Ludwig Lewisohn

A Few Opinions:

"IT is of capital value as a document, pure and simple; it displays its facts adroitly and it carries conviction. But it is of even greater value as—I almost said a work of imagination. It has color, grace, finish, eloquence."—H. L. Mencken.

"I have just finished Lewisohn's 'Up Stream' and am minded now to send a copy to every active adult I know. The texture of its prose is of continuous and astounding beauty. I have thought back six or seven years among the new books which have drifted my way and not found one which takes the English language and makes of it an instrument of comparable loveliness."—Alexander Woollcott.

"To my taste it is far more palatable than nineteen out of twenty novels and far better worth publishing."—Stuart P. Sherman.

"A remarkable spiritual revelation, certainly a rare intellectual treat." —Omaha World-Herald.

"So vital, so dramatic, so absolutely real it is, that to place over against it the coolest of criticism strains and tears in a conflict between mind and heart. . . . For this autobiography every American ought to be thankful."—Christian Science Monitor.

"The most fascinating autobiographical work I have read since James Huneker's Steeplejack. I am inclined to applaud it unstintingly."—Thomas A. Boyd, St. Paul Daily News.

"A most eloquent and absorbing document. Its illuminating comment falls like a searchlight on a hundred hidden meanings."—Johan J. Smertenko, Literary Review of The New York Evening Post.

"Now comes what seems to me to be our first real autobiography. . . . I firmly believe 'Up Stream' to be the finest book in all of American letters. . . . A superb book."—G. D. Eaton, Detroit Free Press.

THE HAIRY APE
ANNA CHRISTIE
THE FIRST MAN
Three Long Plays in One Volume

These three plays are too well known to require detailed comment. Kenneth Macgowan calls The Hairy Ape, which is the inner struggle of the man of toil, waging war for his own soul's status in the modern scheme of things, "the most significant play O'Neill or any other American has written."

Francis Hackett, after seeing Anna Christie, which is O'Neill at his best on the water-front and at sea, wrote: "I am so drunk with fantasy extracted from hard-boiled human beings that I don't know how to become sober." The First Man, according to The Freeman, "touches as high points of drama as O'Neill has ever reached. TERRIBLY INTIMATE PORTRAITS

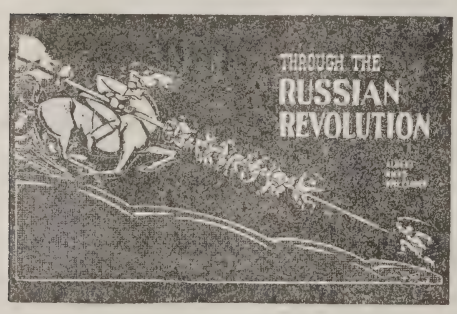
by Noel Coward

With Sixteen Reproductions from Old Masters by Lorn Macnaughton

For years and years the intimate biographical sketch has been running its course in the magazines, and lately there has been a violent epidemic of it in book form. The Gentlemen of Downing Street and of Washington are revealed to a palpitant public; Queen Victoria's scandalous life is laid bare; all the steps of Henry Adams' Education and Edward Bok's Americanization are traced at three dollars a volume, or maybe five.

Here, at last, is a long felt want completely filled: Noel Coward, with his own Terribly Intimate Portraits, some of them so intimate that you can't do anything but gasp, and a few of them leaving you absolutely gaspless.

Don't miss them. This is the most terribly funny book of the season. In truly beautiful format.....$2.00



Among the features that makes this "the most striking of all books on Russia" are 34 sepia photographs and 11 placards, reproduced in English, exactly as they appeared on the walls of Petrograd. WE AND OUR GOVERNMENT by Jeremiah Whipple Jenks, Ph. D., LL. D.

Research Professor of Government and Public Administration, New York University and Rufus Daniel Smith, M.A.

Associate Professor of Public Economy, New York University

Exact Size of Book
10 3-8 x 7 Inches
Every Page Opens Flat

The book is an excellent specimen of scientific book making and conforms in every particular with the specifications of the National Library Association. Richly bound in flexible, dark blue leathercraft binding and sewed. When rolled, it fits the pocket. The main text comprises 50,000 words; the captions 15,000, yet, exclusive of proper names and technical terms, the vocabulary of the captions comprises not more than 500 simple words. No essential fact in the text proper is omitted in the captions. Profusely illustrated with fourteen full-page drawings by Hanson Booth and over four hundred half-tone and line illustrations.

We and Our Government, the first book of the American Viewpoint Series, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University considers "the best brief study of the spirit and the method of popular government that has ever been given to the public;" while Brander Matthews states that "the highest praise I can bestow is to say that it is even better than 'Politics for Young Americans,' which Charles Nordhoff wrote more than half a century ago." Interesting, inspiriting and, withal, easy to read, it carries a message "for native sons of native parents" as well as for the foreigner who has lately left his native soil. We and Our Government makes a universal appeal and may be read with profit by old and young.

The book has been appraised in the highest terms by the foremost educators of the country and all agree that "it is a new departure in civic texts—a most successful departure, and will, through the treatment that has been given the illustrations and the captions, revolutionize text-book making." Teachers in the Elementary Schools, Junior High Schools, Continuation Classes and Citizen Training Classes in Evening Elementary Schools will find it incomparably the best book on the subject."

THE AMERICAN VIEWPOINT SOCIETY

Briefly stated, the Society aims, through a great educational program, to help cultivate among our adult citizens, both native and foreign born, and among school children soon to become voters, a higher civic intelligence.

In the working out of this program, the Society has received not merely the commendation, but has, in fact, received the active co-operation of government officials, leaders of public opinion and eminent educators, typical of which is the authorization to announce "that the work it is undertaking in the production of books for citizenship classes is done in co-operation with, and in furtherance of, the policies and plans of the United States Department of Labor in its citizenship training work."

Two more will discuss our population and its component elements. Two others will treat of our business relations. Finally, there will be four volumes on our social relations, health and sanitation, progress, literature and education.

MANY distinguished American and foreign authors and critics have said that this series of books is one of the most stimulating factors in American intellectual life. Many of the volumes in it are not reprints but are new books which can not be found in any other edition. None of them can be had in any such convenient and attractive form, and it would be difficult to find any other editions of any of these books at double the price. Each volume is hand-bound in limp, flexible style with stained top and is stamped and decorated in genuine gold. The size is a small 12 mo.

Important Announcement

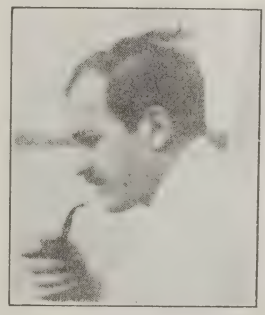
Immediately after this catalogue was printed, arrangements were made for us to publish the future work of Ben Hecht, the author of "Erik Dorn."

On September 15th, we will publish

BEN HECHT'S GARGOYLES

A DEVASTATING NOVEL.

"Gargoyles" is not another "Erik Dorn." In fact, it is the antithesis of the author's first book. In "Erik Dorn" Hecht wrote the lyrical rise and fall of a sky-rocket soul. Dorn was the amused and disillusioned protagonist of ecstasy —an emotionless man in love with passion. "Erik Dorn" demanded a lyrical style. Hecht's change of milieu has demanded a complete change of style and only in occasional passages is the Ben Hecht of "Erik Dorn" the Ben Hecht of "Gargoyles." "Gargoyles" is the study of minds, of motivations, of causes and effects. There are no cynics, no scoundrels, no supermen in "Gargoyles." There are, instead, "nice people"—a procession of amazingly vivid, average human beings. So the new novel is written, almost without exception, not in lyrical prose, but in straightforward, man-to-man, between you and me plain English.



In "Gargoyles" the disillusion that inspired "Erik Dorn" is turned not upon another man's soul, but upon the entire American scene. It is needless to say that "Gargoyles" is a most courageous work. It is a narrative of the artificial life existing in any larger city in America. And Hecht aloofly and amusedly strips his characters of their placid exteriors, uncovering and undressing them until under the persuasive magic of psychology the procession changes into curious misshapen nudities, a rabble of gargoyles. Hecht's people seem sensual, often mean and insincere. They are unconscious that a union between the sexes should be based upon noble and beautiful ideas instead of carnal desire and satisfaction. Some critics may even accuse Hecht of moralizing and preaching a sermon, the theme of which is that until people are free from the petty vulgar characteristics of everyday life we may not expect them to turn to the romantic world with true vision and ideals.

"Gargoyles" is a big book possessing a definite value for any reader interested in an intensely gripping story (the stuff of 20 novels is poured lavishly into the pages of this book) based on truth of life and character. In it, the ghastly twisted motives, repressions and hypocrisies which leer under the Puritanism, Idealism and Buncombe of our new century are uncovered for the first time, perhaps, in contemporary literature. It is amazing in its powerful interpretation of certain phases of our modern life which demand change, and which only dramas of such hilarious iconoclasm as "Gargoyles" can hope to throw into prominent and ugly relief.

The story moves around George Basine, a lawyer and politician, his mother, a widow, and his sisters, Doris and Fanny, and their husbands, lovers, hangers-on. Their intrigues, false romanticism, sensuality and personal characteristics are set down in "Gargoyles" in vivid and concise phrasing, with a sure technique which illuminates their stories with a quality of exact lucidity which leaves their tales as interesting as if they were our own observations. Mr. Hecht's book is complete, exact, unpleasant, truthful; told as only great stories are and should be told.

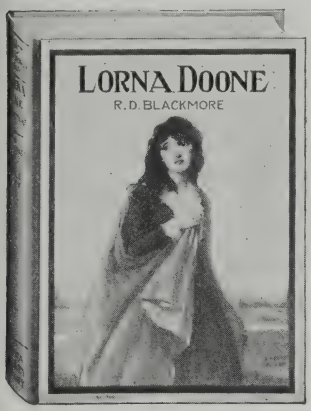
LORNA DOONE

By R. D. Blackmore

ABRIDGED FOR JUVENILE READERS BY CAROLYN SHERWIN BAILEY



Illustrated by Harold Brett

This beautiful volume of Lorna Doone is published in answer to the demands of librarians and parents for an edition of this famous classic adapted to the needs of juvenile readers. The text itself is unchanged, reprinted from the original, except that by judicious elimination of some of the lengthy descriptive matter, the action is quickened and the interest of younger readers more easily sustained. The typography, size, style and binding of this edition are particularly appealing, but its greatest claim to distinction lies in the quality of its truly interpretive pictures. These beautiful illustrations in color are from original paintings by Harold Brett, who has made live a modern artists' interpretation of this lovely girl-woman—an interpretation which excels in beauty and idealism the long known and famous painting by Wontner. With marvelous success Mr. Brett has caught and symbolized the influences and environment of the real Lorna Doone. He has portrayed with rare sympathy a fearless child of the wind-swept moors, with eyes that have gazed over wide spaces and absorbed the mysticism of the stars. This portrait leaves an impression of beauty and strength and character which makes a tremendous appeal to the imagination and will ever remain in the memory synonymous with the Lorna Doone the author has given to the reader.

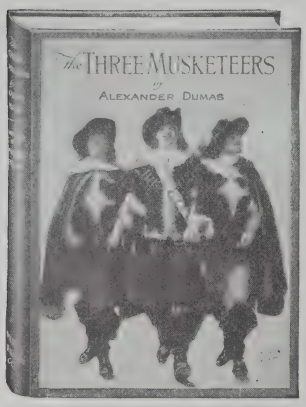
The Greatest of Romantic Classics Retold for Children



THE THREE MUSKETEERS

By Alexander Dumas

Edited by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey

This edition of the Dumas masterpiece is a real achievement in the editing of a famous classic, presenting it in practically the exact words of the author, yet by elimination of questionable passages, making of it a book which the most conscientious parents will not hesitate to place in the hands of their children.

All the incidents of stirring adventures, the shining examples of loyalty and courage, the fellowship and sympathy of the companions in arms, are retained. These are in fact emphasized for the child reader by the deletion of the amours of Milady and details of court intrigue of which the normal child understands little and cares less.

The superb illustrations are reproduced in full color from original and remarkable drawings by Harold Brett, one of the foremost illustrators in this country.

EVANGELINE

By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

With historical prose version

by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey

This beautiful volume contains Longfellow's immortal poem, and a historical prose version, based upon authentic records of the wanderings and trials of the unfortunate Acadians. The lives of these people have been definitely traced by Miss Bailey, providing background for the romance of the poem. This book is more than a story—more than a fine edition of Evangeline, it is an important contribution to American literature upon a subject about which little has been written. The book is beautifully printed and bound and illustrated with twenty-one duotone prints. Jacket in full colors.

THE BEST MYTHS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

By Carolyn S. Bailey

Illustrated by Clara M. Burd

The choicest stories of ancient mythology, charmingly retold in simple language. These stories, older than history itself, possess a never-failing fascination for the young, and lay the foundation for a later appreciation of classic literature.

As a healthy stimulant for the youthful imagination, the myth is preferable to the ordinary fairy story. Every home and school library should contain this storehouse of entertainment and instruction.

LOST RIVER
TWO BOYS IN THE BIG WOODS
By Allen Chaffee
Illustrated by Peter J. Da Ru

Separated from their camp-canoe party, a boy scout and a backwoods boy get lost in the wild lands of Maine, and have to find their way through one hundred miles of untracked and all but impenetrable forest, with little save their knowledge of woodcraft to aid them in the struggle for food and shelter and a means of transportation.

Every normal American boy will pronounce this realistic fiction one of the most entertaining books he ever read. It imparts much useful knowledge on the subject of camping and woodcraft, and demonstrates that loyal friendship does not rest on mere social nor financial equality.

Lost River is the kind of a story you want your boy to read.

TRAIL AND TREE TOP

And here is the boy from Valley Farm, who knew just what to do in some of the emergencies that befell his furred and feathered friends. While there are a few big words for the grown-ups, they are all explained for the younger readers.

Gravure pictures—colored frontispiece—jacket in colors and gold. Big value for a popular price. This book will be nationally advertised.

TWINKLY EYES AT VALLEY FARM

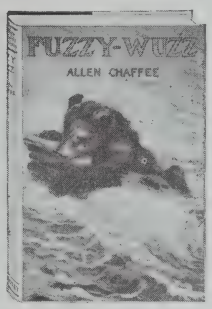
By Allen Chaffee

When Twinkly Eyes, the yearling cub, visits the sugar camp once too often he finds himself in a trap, and the boy from the Valley Farm takes him home. The little black rascal manages, however, to pass the time by getting into 57 varieties of trouble, from digging up the seed potatoes to stealing a hot pie from the window sill. But, of course, he is never really happy till he wins back his freedom.

Cloth. Illustrated. Price, $0.85

FUZZY WUZZ

By Allen Chaffee
Illustrated by Peter Da Ru



Fuzzy Wuzz, the little brown bear of the Sierras that the Rancher rescued from the icy waters of the mountain stream, is brought up with the orphaned fawn that the children had tamed, a rascally young burro, a ring-tailed cat, an owl, a tame canary, and a valiant yellow pup.

The scene is laid in the high Sierras, where trout-filled streams cascade down fragrant cedar slopes.

Allen Chaffee has again turned natural science into story form. With the enterprising bear cub, he introduces pine squirrels and painted chipmunks, the pika of the snow-clad peaks, and the rattler of the sun-baked lowlands, the weasel and the wapiti, and a glimpse of the cougar and the coyote.

Cloth Price, $0.85

THE ADVENTURES OF FLEET FOOT AND HER FAWNS

By Allen Chaffee

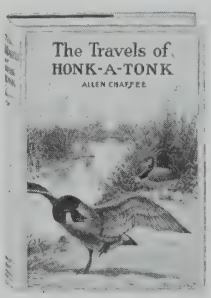
A true-to-nature story of a mother deer and her little ones. Many are the adventures of Fleet Foot and many and inspiring are the lessons taught her fawns by reason of those adventures.

Every child will read this book with real delight and in doing so will learn much about the deer and other familiar animals of forest and field.

Cloth. Illustrated. 128 Pages. Price, $0.85

THE TRAVELS OF HONK-A-TONK

By Allen Chaffee



In this story the reader follows the V-shaped flying wedge of a real mother goose and her goslings which "by easy stages, past plains and mountain tops, sailed the skies till winter found them on the rich lagoons of the Gulf of Mexico." This is a story which children will delight in reading or hearing, and incidentally they will learn many nature truths as to how the wild goose lives and its natural relationship to other creatures of the wilderness, both friend and foe, with which it comes in contact.

NEW BOOKS

Cl. Chivas-Baron

THREE WOMEN OF ANNAM. (Trois Femmes Annamites). Authorized Translation from the French. Exotic romance of rare beauty, vivid portraits of the dazzling atmosphere of Annam, wisdom of the East that consoles and comforts us here below.

M. Chivas-Baron, who travelled and lived in Annam for many years, portrays in these three romances three women of different stations in life. Nowhere can we find so colorful a picture of life and love as it is lived and understood in this strange and enchanting land. This book reveals a new world to all English readers. Cloth, $2.00.

Paul Cézanne

PAUL CÉZANNE by Ambroise Vollard. (See Ambroise Vollard).

Ruben Darío

PROSAS PROFANAS AND OTHER POEMS. Translated from the Spanish by Charles B. McMichael. Ruben Dario is an outstanding figure among the Spanish-American poets. He was the leader of the Modernist Movement in Spanish-American poetry, and in 1916 received a gold medal from the Hispanic Society of New York. A little later he contracted pneumonia and returned to his native country where he died the same year.

This volume contains selections of Darío's most characteristic work, giving evidence of the heights of poetic imagery to which the poet rises. Boards, $1.20.

Henry W. Fisher

ABROAD WITH MARK TWAIN AND EUGENE FIELD. Fisher presents here the story of his intimate association in Europe with Mark Twain and relates some of those man-to-man anecdotes that found no place in his published letters or in his writings. Such anecdotes must prove to be of surpassing interest not only for themselves, but also for the new light they shed on a unique and cherished personality.

And as with Mark Twain so with Eugene Field, another example of innocence abroad. It is to the association and friendship then formed that we are indebted for these new revelations of our well-beloved Eugene Field.

This volume is edited by Merle Johnson, the well-known bibliographer of Mark Twain. Large 12mo, Cloth, $2.25.

A limited edition of 325 numbered copies of this book has been printed on Blandford Antique Laid paper. Octavo, Roma boards, linen back, deckle edge. Net $5.00.

Remy de Gourmont

VERY WOMAN (SIXTINE). A Cerebral Novel. Translated from the French by J. L. Barrets. Remy de Gourmont, freest of free lances, trails passions and instincts, conventions and prejudices to their hidden lairs.

The heroine, Sixtine, a charming Parisian young widow whose first love resulted in a tragedy, is now incapable of making a second choice. Nevertheless, she finds herself fascinated by an aristocratic Parisian dilletante, Entragues, a symbol of pure intellect. Although devoured by his passion for Sixtine, he is too intellectual, too hesitant in the campaign of love, to take her by storm, as she desires. The impasse is broken by the advent of a naive Russian, the direct counterpart of Entragues, a symbol for natural man.

Remy de Gourmont's brain is like a fly's eye—he sees everything and each time differently. 317 pp., Cloth, $2.50.

A VIRGIN HEART. A Novel. Authorized translation by Aldous Huxley. The mind of Remy de Gourmont had the rare distinction of embracing the intelligence of an epoch. No writer of our time has bored deeper into the inner workings of the human soul; no writer of our time has been so illuminating in the analysis of the vital impulses of the human being.

In this novel Remy de Gourmont attacks the problem of all feminine problems—the virginity of the heart. He probes delicately, deftly; and the resulting story incessantly throws off luminous ideas about human behavior. They have the irresistible attraction and brilliance of a new kind of light.

In this translation Aldous Huxley, himself eminent as a master of style, has rendered faithfully, and with his usual distinction, the finesse of sentiment and of thought in Remy de Gourmont's work. Cloth, $2.00.

Miss Janet Lee (Sophomore)

WILD WOMEN. The Romance of a Flapper. This book presents a very entertaining and appealing picture of the family life of simple folk. Here every reader will see a reflection of the wholesome and amusing happenings of the average American household.

The heroine of the story is a high-school girl of sixteen summers, and like most girls of her age looks with a critical eye upon everyone in the family. The situations are realistically humorous, and the book is one continuous chuckle. With 25 illustrations by the author. Heartily recommended to young and old. Cloth, $1.00.

Alfredo Panzini

WANTED—A WIFE! Authorized Translation from the Italian, by Frederic Taber Cooper. In WANTED—A WIFE! the delectable Italian novelist, Alfredo Panzini, has given the world a rare achievement —a happy combination of humor and romance.

Our hero, Ginetto Sconer, having amassed considerable wealth in business, decides he must have an heir. The application of his sound business principles to the wooing of women of different stations in life earns for him many surprises—and for the reader many hearty laughs.

The author tells a rollicking story and describes all the situations with a masterly certainty of touch, picturing human nature with all its faults, absurdities, and admirable qualities.

AN ITALIAN "KIPPS" (H. G. Wells)

"We lay down the book with a sigh of regret, and then we remember, and only then, that the author is not Cavaliere Ginetto Sconer but Alfredo Panzini. Can more be said in praise of Io cerco moglio (Wanted—A Wife)? Panzini is the foremost Italian novelist after d'Annunzio, and the only one possessed with that subtle humour, difficult to analyze, which is more often associated with the Anglo-Saxon than the Latin mind. His people are interested in life from every point of view.

"Where every page is delightful it is difficult to say where the 'memoirs' succeed best. . . ."—London Times.

294 pp., Cloth, $1.90.

G. F. Scotson-Clark

EATING WITHOUT FEARS. There is an old story of a bride, who, as she was changing into her travelling suit, turned to her maiden aunt and said, "Oh, auntie, how can I make sure that Horace will always be as good and kind and lovable as he is now? How can I hold his affection and love?"—"Feed the brute," snapped the old lady. Now this perhaps is vulgar but it is undoubtedly the truth. This little book is not intended to be a cookery book, but it contains many dishes the soul of the bachelor loves, dishes that can be easily made by the sweet young girl who would win the bachelor's affections, and once having won them would hold them forever and a day. This is not a semi-scientific work on dietetics, but it does contain the recipes of those dishes the author enjoyed with a beneficient result for the past fifty years of a joyous life, free from illness and wrinkles. Cookery plays such a large part in our life and health that it is foolish to belittle its importance. Good taste in food is as necessary as good taste in art, literature and music, and the very fact of looking upon gastronomy as one of the arts will keep a man from becoming that most disgusting of all creatures, a glutton. This book contains also a number of recipes for preparing food and fermented fruit-juices. Cloth, $1.50.

Ambroise Vollard

PAUL CEZANNE. Authorized Translation by Harold L. Van Doren. Paul Cézanne was born in January, 1839, at Aix-en-Provence. His father was a business man who expected his son to be established some day in one of those honorable professions which are so abundantly lucrative and redound so creditably to the honor of a family But an irresistible leaning towards painting, which was to become the despair of his parents, manifested itself very early in young Paul Cezanne. Curiously enough his first box of colors was given to him by his father. Paul entered the boarding school of St. Joseph at the age of ten and there learned the elements of drawing from a Spanish Monk. Three years later, as a student at the Collége Bourbon, now the Lycée d'Aix, he met Zola who was in a less advanced class. They became friends at once. Zola would read aloud and comment upon Musset, Hugo, Lamartine. Cézanne, full of the names of the great colorists, Veronese, Rubens and Rembrandt, would formulate theories of art. After school hours Cézanne pursued the courses in drawing and painting given at the Municipal Museum. Already he was astonishing his comrades by the audaciousness of his interpretations. Against his father's will he took up painting as a profession and later was to become one of the great figures in the modern French school. The author of this book, Ambroise Vollard, had the distinction of knowing personally all the great painters and authors of that time. He is a man of great erudition and a great art critic. With the intuition and skill of a Boswell, Ambroise Vollard has drawn the life of a great artist, dealing with his subject in a style that savors of fiction. This book is considered the most authoritative work on the life and art of Paul Cézanne. A number of reproductions of the work of Cézanne are added to the text. Probable price, $3.00.

Alfred Werck

STAINED GLASS. A Handbook on the Art of Stained and Painted Glass, its origin and development from the time of Charlemagne to its decadence (800-1650 A. D.). In this volume Mr. Werck gives a detailed survey of the development and decay of the art and its technique. No important detail has been overlooked: we hear of the discovery of Silver-Stain and the technique of abrasion of Flashed-glass, of over-indulgence in colors, and the employment of non-permanent colors, especially in the later phases of the art. We witness its early beginnings in monasteries and we learn to understand the causes of its decay. A complete list of all prominent Artists and Draughtsmen in Stained glass, 384 in all, is appended, together with their creations and the dates of their earliest or latest works known. Twenty illustrations show distinctive characteristics of the various phases in the development and decay of this art.

Indispensable to every Collector of Stained-glass and to everyone interested in its technique and history, as well as librarians.

To those who know nothing of Stained glass, to those who know something and want to know more, to those who know everything but would hear from another—the author dedicates this book.

Octavo, Cloth, gilt top. With frontispiece in colors and nineteen illustrations in half-tone. The jacket in three colors has been designed by the author. Net $5.00.

Gustav Wied

2×2=5. A comedy in four acts. Authorized translation from the Danish by Holger A. Koppel and Ernest Boyd.

A rollicking comedy by one of the pillars of Scandinavian literature. Wied is little known in this country, and this play will serve as a sort of introduction of the great Dane to the English-speaking public. The play will be produced shortly in one of the leading Metropolitan theatres. Boards, $1.50

HISTORICAL MINIATURES

A Series of Monographs Edited By Dr. F. L. GLASER

Each of the volumes in this series will consist of an eyewitness account of one of the most impressive or crucial periods of history. The volumes in the collection are selected especially for the intrinsic qualities of observations and the skill of the narrator in presenting a true picture of his time. The events of the past are the guide-posts to the future. The old truism that the truth is stranger than fiction is amply borne out by these monographs. The editor will avoid the republication of works which are already easily accessible. He will select on the contrary works which are, perhaps, even more interesting because less generally known. The volumes will be valuable not only to the general reader, but also to the student of history. Where the original is too long to come within the scope of the monograph, the editor will select the salient passages, but always in the text it will be the contemporary who writes. Cloth, $2.00 each.

SCENES FROM THE COURT OF PETER THE GREAT. Based on the Latin Diary of John G. Korb, a Secretary of the Austrian Legation at the Court of Peter the Great. Few great men of history present a character more picturesque and complex than Peter the Great. This contemporary diary is an invaluable historical document, and its publicity led to serious friction between the Russian and Austrian courts. Few copies of the original Latin edition are in existence, because every available copy was purchased by the Czar's agents and destroyed. The editor has skilfully chosen the most significant and vivid portions, which reveal the personality of Peter the man, whose human interest will outlive the political power of the Romanoff dynasty.

POPE ALEXANDER VI AND HIS COURT. The Italian Renaissance was rich in great statesmen, churchmen, and artists, whose complex and vivid personalities will continue to fascinate students of human life and historians until the end of time. The Borgia family, especially Alexander VI, and his son Cesare and daughter Lucretia, played an important role in this colorful world. Johannes Burchardus, on whose diary the text is based, was for many years Master of Ceremonies at the Papal Court. He was a contemporary and participant in many of the events described. In a crabbed medieval Latin and in endless detail he wrote down what he saw, but buried away in his hundreds upon hundreds of pages are many sidelights and pictures of inestimable historical value. The editor, Dr. F. L. Glaser, has translated these, and combined them with rare literary skill and scholarship into a consecutive narrative, so that not only the Borgias themselves and other great personalities, but also the varied life of the age with its processions, festivals, carnivals, intrigues, and the like pass before the reader in picturesque review.

LIFE IN PARIS UNDER LOUIS XV. Extracts from the Diary of Simeon Prosper Hardy, contemporary, publisher and bookseller. In Preparation.

THE SEA GULL LIBRARY

EDITED BY O. F. THEIS

A new series of books in belles-lettres, designed to include works of the world's literature, which have hitherto not been translated into English, or which for various reasons are not known except to the few. In the selections of titles the only standard that has been kept in view is that the work in question must have the quality of literature, and be more than a mere ephemeral production. Through the Sea Gull Library many a work of permanent value will be made available in convenient form and at a reasonable price to ever-widening circles of readers. Each volume contains an introduction. Special attention has been given to the make-up and binding of the volumes, to the end that they may be a thing of beauty which it will be a pleasure to handle and to possess. Bound in gray vellum de luxe cloth with an attractive cover-design. Price, per volume, $1.50.

Francis Jammes

ROMANCE OF THE RABBIT. Authorized translation from the 14th French edition by Gladys Edgerton. Francis Jammes is the poet of the French landscape and of the simple heart. In his work hovers both the spirit of Virgil and of the gentle St. Francis of Assissi. He tells of Rabbit's fears and joys, of his own life on this earth, of his pilgrimage to paradise with St. Francis and his animal companions, and of his death. The volume includes also a number of short tales and impressions.

Jens Peter Jacobsen

MOGENS and other stories. Translated from the Danish by Anna Grabow. The author is known as one of the greatest stylists in Scandinavian literature. The stories in the present form are pastels of wonderful delicacy, and filled with the keenest psychological observation.

Gérard de Nerval

DAUGHTERS OF FIRE. (Sylvie-Emilie-Octavie). Translated from the French by James Whitall. Gérard de Nerval is one of the outstanding figures in French literature of the 19th Century and his influence in the symbolist movement is far reaching. "THE DAUGHTERS OF FIRE" are three women to each of whom a story is given. They are wonderful, vivid, unique figures in literature. According to Arthur Symons, Gérard de Nerval laid the foundations of what may be called the practical aesthetics of symbolism.

Arthur Schnitzler

THE SHEPHERD'S PIPE AND OTHER STORIES. Authorized translation from the German, by O. F. Theis. The title story is one of the finest examples of the great Austrian's work and shows him in perhaps a somewhat unaccustomed light. It was written long before the war, but is strangely prophetic of Europe's present state. In the other stories Schnitzler's delicate art appears also to good advantage.

OTHER VOLUMES IN PREPARATION.

John Gould Fletcher

PAUL GAUGUIN: HIS LIFE AND ART. Gauguin admittedly stands with Cezanne and Van Gogh as one of the three dominant influences of the present day. If anything the interest in his life and art is greater than ever. The present volume is a keen and authoritative interpretation of both, indispensable to all who are interested in the development of modern art. It has been Fletcher's task to show Gauguin's real position and influence, and to disentangle the real man and artist from the romantic accretions that have grown up around him. In fact no better interpreter could be found than John Gould Fletcher, who in his own right is one of the most distinguished of contemporary poets, and gifted with a poet's insight into the soul of the creative artist. Nothing essential, nothing important has been overlooked. The strangely complex, and yet simple personality and art of Gauguin is presented so clearly and compactly that the reader is scarcely aware of what an extraordinary feat of creative criticism the author has accomplished.

Paul Gauguin

NOA NOA. Translated from the French by O. F. Theis. In Noa Noa Paul Gauguin has written the story of his life on Tahiti, in the South Seas. He tells us how he first sojourned with the Europeans in Tahiti; then in that part of the country where they rarely appear, and finally how he went alone into the wilderness to be alone in an Elysian nature. Here he found courage to take a wife, not Titi, beloved of Europeans, but the chaste Tehura, who had never seen a white man. With her he shares his hut. And here an idyl unfolds itself while in the background the old story of the conquest of the island by what we call European culture goes on.

"This book holds in store a rare, rare treat for the simple. One's only quarrel is with its brevity."—The Bookman.

The two books described above supplement each other in a remarkable fashion. The one is a poet's interpretation of the art and life of a very great artist, and the other this artist's own record of the most outstanding period of his life. The two books are bound uniformly, in Moretto Boards, and each contains ten reproductions in half-tone. Sold together, boxed $4.00 per set; also separately $2.00 each.

Vsevolod Garshin

A RED FLOWER. A gripping short story by one of Russia's popular authors. Boards, 35c.

F. L. Glaser, Editor

See Historical Miniatures.

Herondas

THE MIMES OF HERONDAS. Completely rendered into English by Mitchell S. Buck. Herondas (third Century B. C.) was a Greek poet, distinguished as an extreme realist. As a bald and undistorted picture of the intimate life of his period the Mimes are of the utmost importance, to students, also to more general readers, who have, however, a certain leaning toward antiquity and appreciate the opportunity of seeing, intimately, these interesting phases of antique Greek life. The Mimes, which are in the form of dialogues, are carried along by vividly drawn characters who are almost as human to us today as they must have been to other readers, over two thousand years ago. Limited to 975 numbered copies for subscribers. Net $5.00.

Jeremiah

BOOK OF JEREMIAH, including the Lamentations. With 15 full-page drawings by William Saphier. Few books in the Old Testament can equal the Book of Jeremiah in poetic power and majesty.

The bold prophet, who stood out against the enervating tendencies of his age only to gain imprisonment and the hatred of party and faction, is one of the great tragic figures in literature. The drawings of Saphier are saturated with the spirit of the book, and make live for us the figure of the great prophet and the times in which he labored. This edition is limited to 975 numbered copies, handsomely printed in small quarto, on antique laid deckle-edge paper, bound in Italian boards with Irish linen back. Boxed. Price, $7.50.

Alfred Kreymborg

BLOOD OF THINGS. A second Book of Free Forms. Alfred Kreymborg holds a secure position among the more significant modern poets who in recent years have opened new poetic vistas. This volume contains a hundred and fifty poems. Whatever the subject is the poet always has something new to say, and his angle of approach is always individual. Boards, $2.00.

OTHERS FOR 1919. An Anthology of the New Verse. Edited by Alfred Kreymborg. This volume contains the best work of twenty-six of our most distinguished poets, and is ample demonstration of the truth that America is as polyglot in her poetry as she is as a nation. "Here are vivid gifts being directed with powerful push and reach towards an almost bewildering variety of ends."—The Nation (New York). Boards, $2.00.

Ernest Lacy

PLAYS AND SONNETS. Two volumes. Vol. I: The Bard of Mary Redcliffe, a play in five acts. Vol. II: Rinaldo, the Doctor of Florence, a play in five acts. Chatterton, a one-act play. Sonnets. These three plays and sixty odd sonnets are written with lucidity and emotion, and a human heart throbs through them. The former won the approbation of the foremost living authority and historian of the English drama, Prof. A. W. Ward of Cambridge, while the sonnets evoked a fine critical eulogy from Sir Sidney Lee. With 7 etchings, cloth, $3.50 the set.

Memorial one-volume edition, with portrait of author. Cloth, $2.25.

Dmitri Merejkovski

THE MENACE OF THE MOB. Translated by B. G. Guerney. An acute diagnosis of the causes of unrest and sickness of the present time, together with an indication for the way out of the unusual state in which the world finds itself. Merejkovski with the extraordinary genius of great writers does not mince matters nor get lost in the maze of inessentials. His book deals with fundamentals of vital importance to everyone interested in social, ethical or religious matters. Cloth, $1.50.

Michael Monahan

DRY AMERICA. Michael Monahan presents the literary case against prohibition distributing his argument among a series of brilliant chapters interspersed with very free and audacious translations from Horace and culminating in a humorous fantasy of what may happen to America in the event of its remaining wedded to its present prohibition idols; which the author seems to regard as extremely doubtful. The author has never given us more piquant satire. He has produced a book of compelling force and challenge upon what is beyond doubt the all-dominating question of the hour. Cloth, pictorial cover, $1.50.

Arne Norrevang

THE WOMAN AND THE FIDDLER. A play in three acts. Translated from the Norwegian by Mrs. Herman Sandby. Based on the legends of fiddlers going about from valley to valley and playing for peasants at their festivities. Cloth, $1.00.

Rear-Admiral Geo. Henry Preble

ORIGIN AND HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG. New edition, with supplement, bringing the work up to date. With 239 illustrations from wood-cuts, color-plates, maps and autographies. 2 volumes. Buckram, gilt tops. $7.50 for the set.

Stanislaw Przybyszewski

SNOW. A play in five acts. The author is one of the most eminent figures in modern Polish literature. Few have gone further than he in the analysis of the "naked human soul." Against the intense conflict of passions and motives within is set the symbol of cold whiteness of the snow covering all the landscape without. "How wonderfully this inward drama marches to its end, how it grows and swells."—Walter Prichard Eaton. Boards, $1.50. Translated by O. F. Pheis.

Pitts Sanborn

VIE DE BORDEAUX. A volume of poems in English. In free verse the author has interpreted the soul of old Bordeaux in the hour of war. Boards, $1.20.

Evelyn Scott

PRECIPITATIONS. A volume of poems. Containing the best and most characteristic of an author whose name is coming more and more to the front among contemporary poets. There is flesh and blood in her work, because each thing she tests out by herself. It is this which lends an astringent and unique beauty to her work. Boards, $1.50.

August Strindberg

THE CREDITOR. A tragic comedy. A searching psychological study of the divorce question. Cloth, $1.00.

FROKEN JULIE (Countess Julie). Translated from the Swedish. A naturalistic tragedy, described by James Huneker as "an emotional bombshell with a kitchen for a battlefield of souls." Cloth, $1.00.

MOTHERLOVE. One of Strindberg's most effective one-act plays. Second edition. Boards, 35c.

SWANWHITE. A fairy drama, translated by Francis J. Ziegler. "A poetic idyl, charming in its sweet purity, delightful in its optimism." —Springfield Republican. Second edition. Cloth, $1.00.

John Addington Symonds

LAST AND FIRST. Under this title are made available for the first time in book form "The New Spirit" and "Arthur Hugh Clough," the latest and earliest essays of that great critic and humanist, John Addington Symonds. Cloth, $1.50.

Grover Theis

NUMBERS. Five one-act plays. The title play is possibly one of the most powerful one-act plays ever written. It dramatizes the fundamental principles of all war, that victory is on the side of the strongest battalions. In it the author confronts facts with such grim directness that while the war was still being fought, it would have been impossible to publish the play. Boards, $1.35.

Leo N. Tolstoi

THE LIVING CORPSE. Translated by Anna Monossovitch Evarts, from the only authorized Russian edition based on the MSS. in the possession of Countess A. L. Tolstoi. A drama in six acts and twelve tableaux. Cloth, $1.00.

John Varney

SKETCHES OF SOVIET RUSSIA. Whole Cloth and Patches. An unusual book by a young American who spent a good part of the turbulent years of 1918 and 1919 in Russia. The author's method of approach is neither one of condemnation nor of praise. He sketches with keen insight the scenes he has seen and the life about him so that the reader gains, perhaps, a more vivid picture of the spirit that is animating revolutionary Russia, than he would from many a more pretentious volume. Cloth $2.25.

Frank Wedekind

THE AWAKENING OF SPRING. Translated from the German by Francis J. Ziegler. A tragedy of childhood dealing with the sex question in its relationship to the education of the young. Sixth edition. Boards, $1.50.

RABBI EZRA AND THE VICTIM. Two impressive sketches full of color and action. Boards, 35c.

SUCH IS LIFE. A satiric play with mediaeval background but modern significance. Second edition. Cloth, $1.25.
